

Set off from Baker Street station or any point along the route on the map to explore the lights

1

Baker Street / Marylebone Road junction

Inspired by the Sherlock Holmes story, The Adventure of the Blue Carbuncle, the ornate lamppost columns marking the gateway to the Quarter feature illuminated geese sporting blue jewels (carbuncles).

2

55 Baker Street

As you approach this destination, look up into the trees to spot the bright yellow eccentric items that would have been for sale at the amazing and exotic Baker Street Bazaar. The fabulously popular bazaar was a huge draw in the 1800s - 1900s and the original home of the Madame Tussauds exhibition.

3

Portman Square Garden

The shimmer of the blue and gold from the decorations in this garden are a subtle nod to Lady Montagu's 'Blue Stocking Parties' which were held in Montagu House (currently under development as Nobu Hotel) on Portman Square for eminent intellectuals.

4

Manchester Square Garden

Once the home of Marylebone Pleasure Gardens, the trees gleam with thousands of warm lights to reflect how the garden would have been lit by candles and lanterns in the 1700s.

Capture the Baker Street Quarter Glow Photography Competition

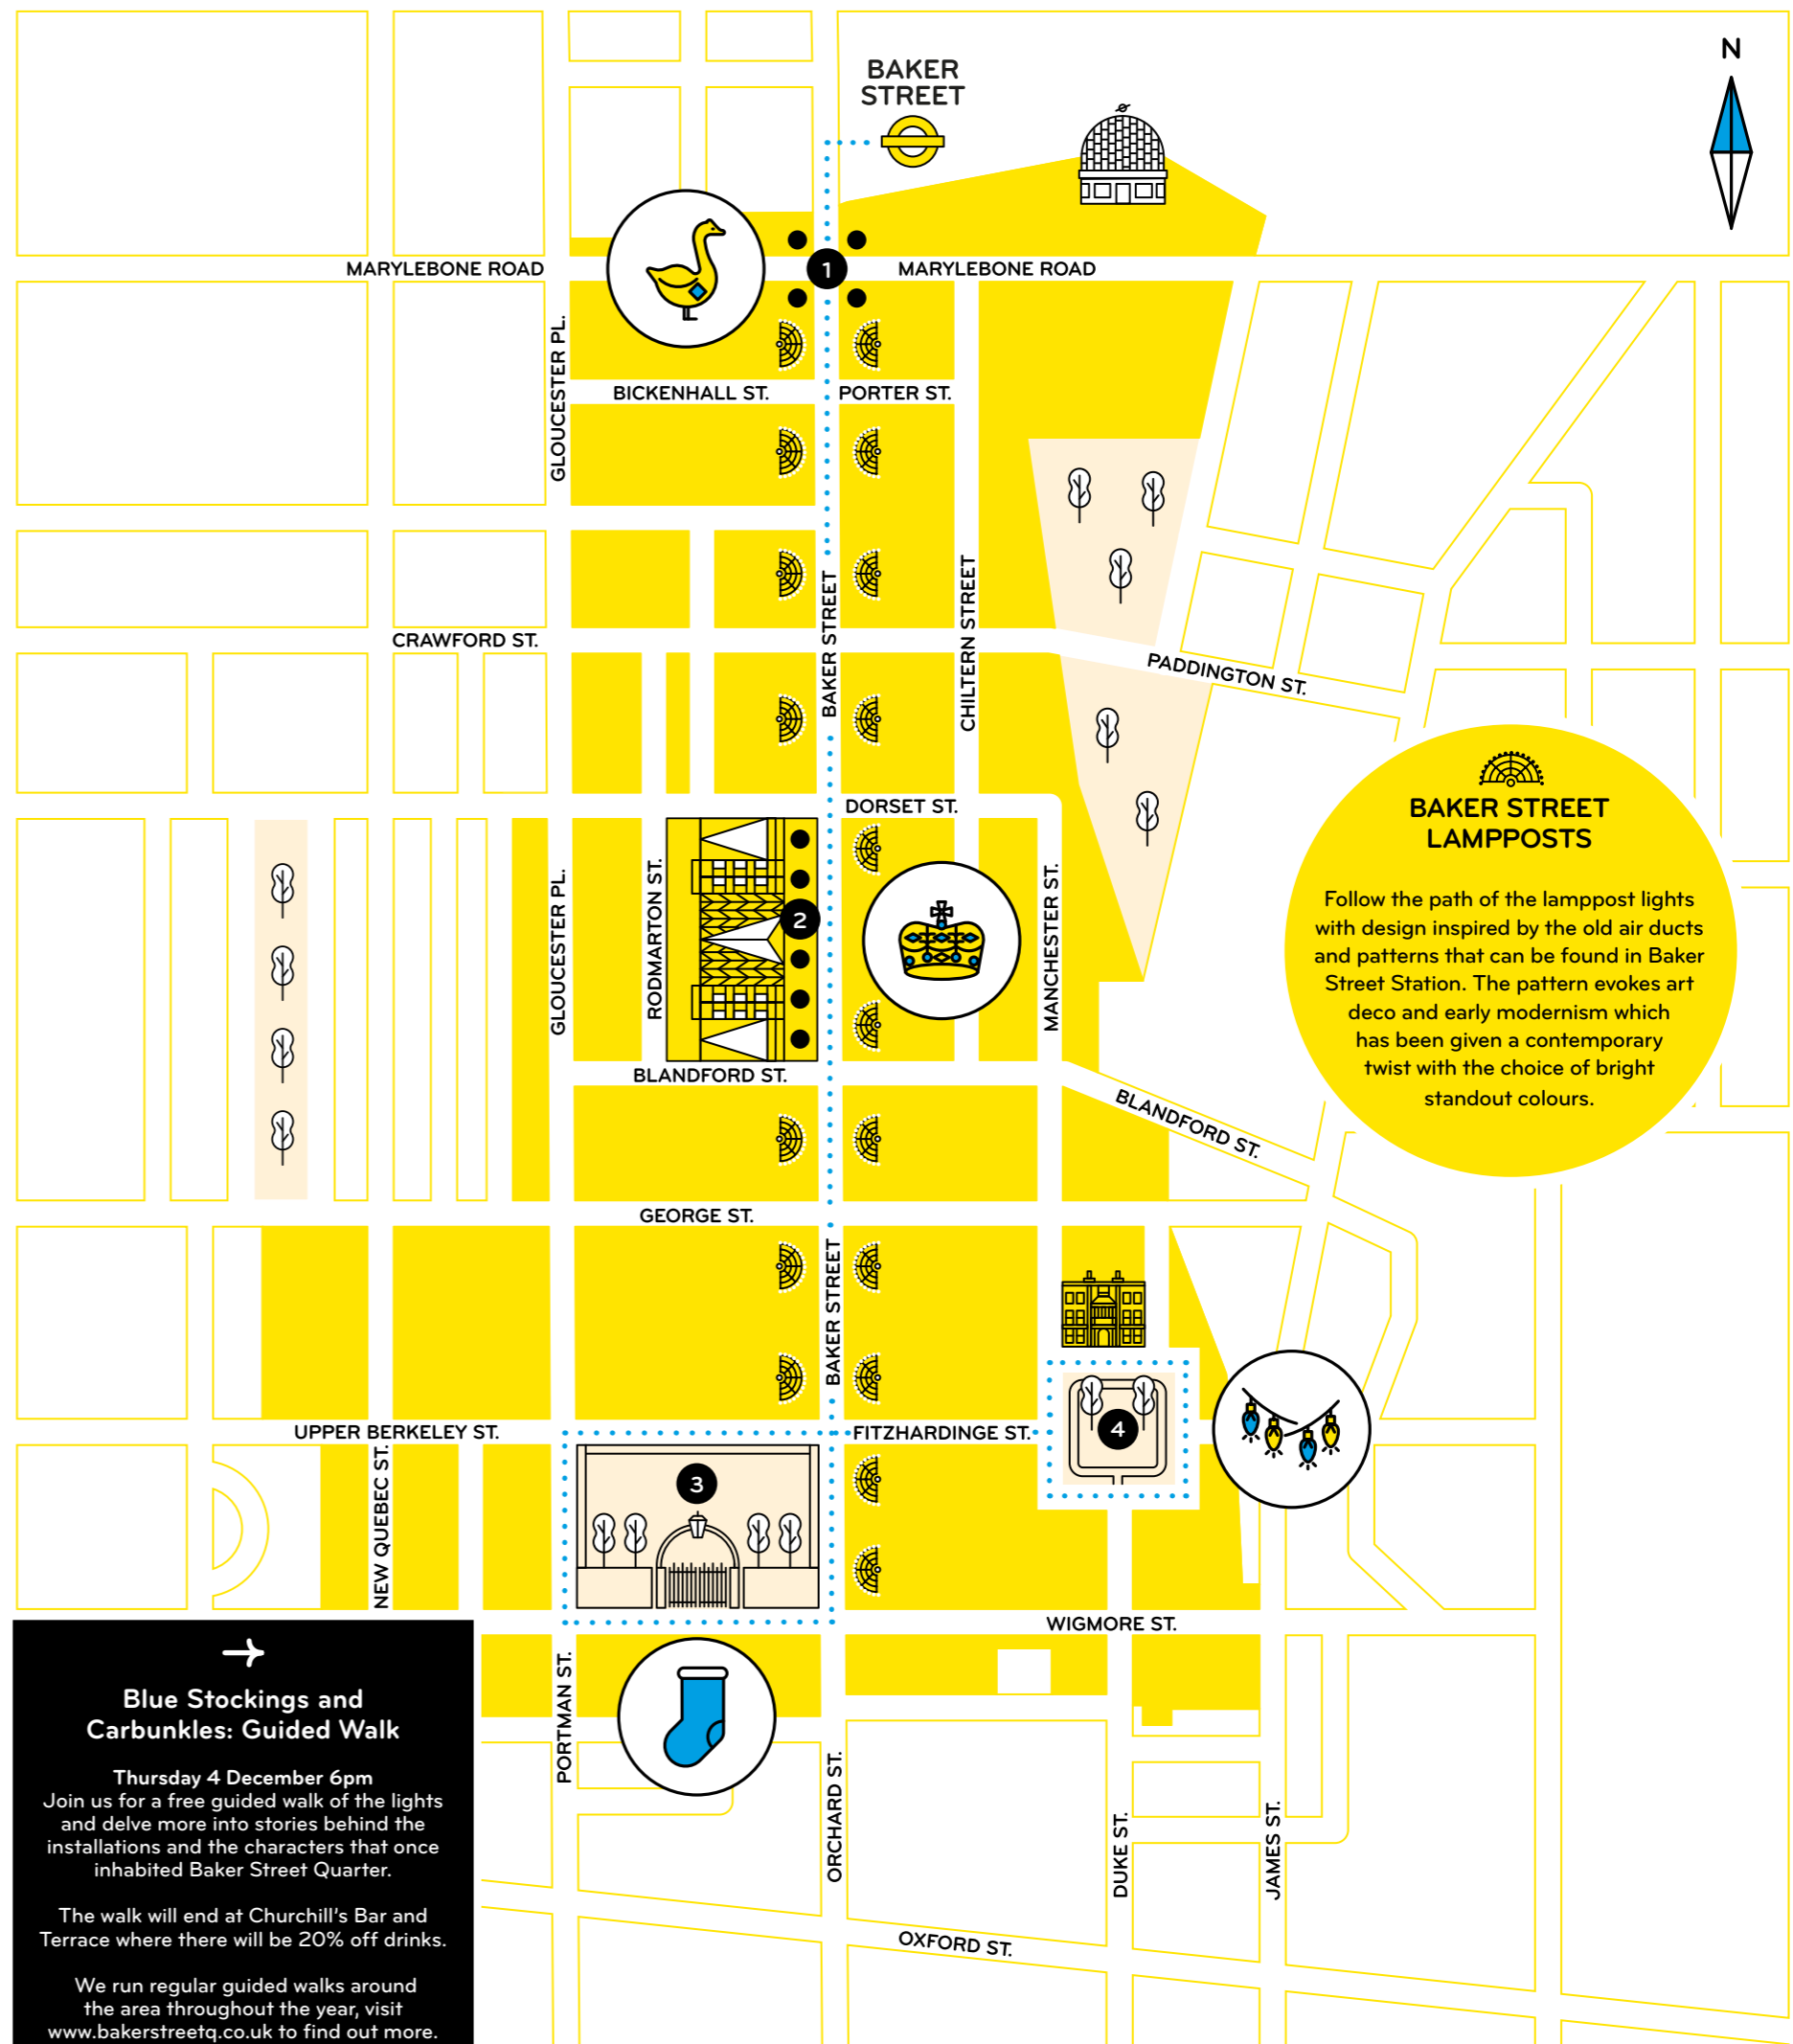

Did you spot the blue carbuncle? The golden geese? A horse in a tree? The glow of lanterns and candlelight? A blue and golden shimmer?

To enter the competition and win

BAKER STREET LAMPPOSTS

Follow the path of the lamppost lights with design inspired by the old air ducts and patterns that can be found in Baker Street Station. The pattern evokes art deco and early modernism which has been given a contemporary twist with the choice of bright standout colours.

Blue Stockings and Carbunkles: Guided Walk

Thursday 4 December 6pm

Join us for a free guided walk of the lights and delve more into stories behind the installations and the characters that once inhabited Baker Street Quarter.

The walk will end at Churchill's Bar and Terrace where there will be 20% off drinks.

We run regular guided walks around the area throughout the year, visit www.bakerstreetq.co.uk to find out more.
